STUDY HEALTH CARE & COMMUNITY SERVICES

The aged care, disability and community services industry is a diverse, exciting and rapidly growing industry that offers graduates choices of highly satisfying careers with fantastic opportunities for long term employment in Australia. With the Diploma of Community Services, graduates can decide on the field they are most passionate about and be empowered to become involved in the management of the service delivery.

Upon completion, graduates can select to work in a variety of services such as disability, aged care, social housing, youth, disadvantaged diverse groups or Aboriginal support.

Graduates at Diploma level will gain skills that may support and improve the lives of their clients as well as develop the skills of their staff. Roles may include overseeing the care of people with complex needs, providing support when clients experience loss and grief, advocating for vulnerable people, supporting staff in the workplace through planning and monitoring services and working with people from vastly diverse backgrounds.

Australian Professional Skills Institute combines face to face learning with valuable workplace training to develop the knowledge needed to work in this industry sector.
